What was your first job?

“My first job out of the home was Chock Full of Nut, a lunch counter in New York City. I was 18 years old. Prior to going to New York, I worked on my parents farm. I began at age 11.

Mrs. Vines

“My first job was in a department store at the mall. I worked in the baby department. I sold Mohammad Ali his daughter's baby crib. He and his wife came in with several security guards. They were very nice to work with. He had his training camp in the area I grew up in Pennsylvania. I was 17 years old.”

7th Grade!

7th grade is a very difficult grade to be in. You're in the middle of everything! You're not new to the school anymore, but at the same time you've still got one more year to go before moving on to high school. It's your own time to shine and you should live your middle school years the way you want to. The most important thing though, is that you make it count.
